

Recruitment Privacy Statement

In order to properly assess your application for a position with the Indigenous Land Corporation (ILC) or one of its wholly owned subsidiaries, the ILC needs to collect the personal information contained in your application documents.

The ILC may need to disclose the personal information to one of its wholly owned subsidiaries, other Government agencies or the Commonwealth Government but only if necessary to assess this application, for a related purpose, or if required by law.

Your application documents may contain the personal information of other people such as referees. You should tell someone if you put their personal information in this application and make sure they are aware of this privacy statement. Even if a person is not made aware that their personal information has been included in this application, the ILC will still collect that personal information for the purpose of assessing your application.

The ILC's Privacy Policy contains further information about how the ILC will treat personal information, including when it may disclose information with overseas recipients, as well as details of how you can access your personal information or how to complain about a privacy breach. The ILC's Privacy Policy can be found on the ILC's website.

If you need further information about privacy and the ILC please write to the Indigenous Land Corporation at GPO Box 652, Adelaide SA 5001.
